Census Registration in Dairen [REDACTED]

1. [REDACTED] residents of Dairen were required to carry residence certificates. An applicant for a residence certificate who had completed census registration was required to submit two photographs to the Chinese Communist police sub-station in order to obtain his certificate.
2. [REDACTED] Dairen residents were also required to report overnight visitors for purposes of temporary census registration, and visitors staying longer for purposes of regular census registration.

Residence Requirements in Northeast China [REDACTED]

25X1

3. [REDACTED] in Northeast China, the Chinese Communist authorities would not issue a removal certificate to a person desiring to change his place of residence. Instead, the local Public Security Bureau (PSB) would send a letter to the public security authorities in the area to which the person desired to move. This measure had been instituted to stop forgery of removal certificates.
4. [REDACTED] residence books had been issued to individuals in areas of Northeast China, with the exception of Mukden, Fushun (N 41-53, E 123-54), Anshan (N 41-04, E 122-57), Ch'angch'un (N 43-53, E 125-20), and Harbin. The books were about four inches in width and two and one-half inches in length; they had red covers and contained four pages.
